The LOWDOWN

Sponsored by Rosebank Care Home

EDITORIAL

Welcome to the March Lowdown! Like our cover photo, there is colour appearing and - whisper it quietly - things really are looking brighter.

Huge thanks to everyone who sent in stories and pictures, please do keep sending in your thoughts, photos, comments, jokes, tales, we always love to hear from you!

Special thanks as always to our sponsors who keep the Lowdown going and especially to Rosebank Care Home for their support for this March issue.

We look forward to bringing you more news of businesses, eateries, pubs, shops and more - many old and some new, as they open up!

Please keep in touch via our Facebook page and by email at thelockdownpress@gmail.com.

Happy reading!

WOT

Witney Oxford Transport

On Friday 5th March Witney Oxford Transport (WOT) filed a comprehensive application for a feasibility study on a possible rail link from Oxford to Carterton (via Eynsham and Witney). The application is to request consideration for reopening or rebuilding rail links or providing new ones where these did not previously exist. The Oxford/Carterton situation covers a bit of both since parts of the old rail infrastructure still exist, others have long disappeared or have been built over.

The feasibility study (if approved) is just that: a detailed study of the proposal's strengths and weaknesses and its subsequent move from feasibility to planning and so on. Therefore, it's just the start of what - for most infrastructure projects in the UK - could be a very long process. Nonetheless, it is essential to put forward as strong a case as possible, which is precisely what Witney Oxford Transport has done.

In the course of our work, it was gratifying to receive letters of support from virtually all of the local political representatives, across every party, and other bodies like Oxford University and RAF Brize Norton.

This situation reflects the results of the survey carried out by WOT while showing a 97% approval for a rail link as a transport alternative for the District.

As our work became more public, we were asked specific questions about the final route, to the point that some people even contacted us for fear that we were recommending the demolition of a dwelling! Far from it. The route map is just a way of joining dots so that external assessors can understand the closeness of a possible line to the district's population, other infrastructure and so on. If the proposal (way down the line if you permit the pun) is eventually approved, it will be subject to intense planning from engineers, economists, and the people living in the District. Only if enough people continue to support us, we will have a stronger voice, and a rail line could become a reality.

The Old Grammar School Our Exciting Future!

After a magnificent fundraising effort, this historic building was completely reroofed in the summer of 2017.

Now thanks to lots more hard work and generous support from the landlords (Bampton Exhibition Foundation), WODC and all our visitors, sufficient funds have been raised to carry out our long-planned improvements to the interior of the building.

The Upstairs Room

A new staircase will create access to the wonderful upstairs space which hasn't been accessible since the early 1960's.

This new space will be used as our main exhibition room. Normally we present three exhibitions every year all with a local interest. We also host exhibitions with West Ox Arts. In addition, we will encourage local groups to utilise the space for community talks, workshops etc.

The Bampton Archive will also install the latest technology to allow individuals and groups to access and research the substantial Bampton Archive: both the database itself, and the wide range of books, exhibition catalogues, audio and video recordings.

The space and furniture will be modular and totally flexible to create a fantastic community space and we will encourage locals to explore, use and get involved in it.

The Robert Vesey Room

A new door to access the ground-floor Vesey Room will be created and the room itself will be sensitively refurbished and fitted out with new storage and display furniture.

We will continue to use this space to sell our fantastic range of Bampton Archive books and catalogues; and the excellent range of local arts, crafts, cards, prints and Downton Abbey memorabilia. We would also like to introduce an enhanced range of items for sale that are made or produced locally.

We will also display some smaller more general exhibition panels designed to be of general interest to all visitors. There will be information on the history of the village of Bampton and related activities.

Bampton Library

The library area, also located on the ground-floor, will also be completely refurbished with a dedicated doorway created beyond the staircase. A modern shelving system is planned which will allow flexible use of the library space and create room for extra book stock. There will be a new counter area and the very latest in computer technology for use by the general public.

A new kitchen area will be created and a stair lift is also planned to allow access for all to the upstairs space.

Talks and Workshops

As well as staging exhibitions, the Archive also plan to use the space upstairs and the space in the newly designed library to hold a wide range of community events.

A regular programme of talks, workshops and small events is being put together. This will include, for example:

- Workshops to encourage youngsters to sign up for apprenticeships for some of the historical trades – for example Dry Stone Walling, Carpentry and Joinery, Thatching and Classic Car Restoration
- Alternative Medicine – Exploring the Village Herbal
- Nature and the Natural World
- Environment and Sustainability
- Cycling & Walking

- Health & Fitness
- Wellbeing & Mental Health
- Book readings and signings with visiting Authors
- Recitals
- Creative writing
- Children's events
- Local History
- Arts & Crafts
- IT Access for all
- Film Shows
- ...and much more

Storage

Part of the project is to create the maximum amount of storage both upstairs and downstairs. We have many items and artefacts that have been acquired or donated to the Archive over the years and we want to be able to store and manage as many of these as possible on site.

Get Involved!

We welcome anyone who would like to get involved with the Bampton Archive, Bampton Library or Bampton Exhibition Foundation. We always need volunteers.

If you would be interested in presenting a talk, holding a workshop or other activity, please get in touch. Be part of this exciting community hub. For more information or to find out what opportunities there are to get involved, please contact:

Abigail's Worry Journal ~ Win a free copy!

Following on from my children's story book, I decided to create a worry journal that Abigail uses in Abigail's World.

When I was younger, whenever I had worries I always wrote them down in a journal, as I imagined the worry leaving my body through the pencil and onto the page, knowing I could shut the book and leave the worry behind. As part of my ongoing mental health, keeping a journal is such an important part of my routine that I still love to do, even as an adult.

A colourful and helpful worry journal for your little ones to fill out when they feel anxious and want to write their worries down. They will be able to track their progress and look back on what techniques they used when they were feeling worried. I love to leave everyday on a positive note so there is a space for them to draw and write their happy thoughts before bed.

To celebrate my new journal, I am giving away a copy! Send your name into The Lowdown to be in with a chance of winning it!

A poem by Witney poet Linda Stringer specially written for the Lowdown! Thank you Linda!

Bampton an ancient market town
A pub is situated called 'The Morris Clown '
'Bampton-in-the-Bush' was first known
On common land it stood alone
Famous for Days of Dance
Morris Dancers take their chance
Bells on their shin
Wow! How they spin
Excitement of Downton Abbey has arrived
The town is revived
Residents graced with Lord and Lady Granthams presence
Everyone wants to make their acquaintance
Will they get invited to a wedding or two ?
St Mary's church to sit in a pew
Every year swifts do nest
Bampton love to have them as guest
Town or village, pretty to see
No one will disagree.

Linda has had her poems published in the local press including the Witney Gazette and in the Cambridge-Hall Poetry Journal. Read more of her poems on Facebook at 'Poems in Linda's world'.

A reader writes ... 'My name is Barry Hudson I live in Bushey Row. On a whim I threw these few hopefully apt words together in the hope that they will resonate with folks. A few year ago I used to write Monthly articles for the Oxford Times and I am also the Secretary for the Oxford Ornithological Society and have included in this email a rather nice photograph of a Jenny Wren that I snapped a short time ago, you are of course welcome to use either for your publication.

Best Wishes, Barry Hudson' Thank you Barry!

Trying Times

All together all the other all the brother
Beat it greet it defeat it
New unseen new has been new Vaccine
With hope with cope with soap
We Will win put in the bin stand firm as kin
Look ahead look no dread look to our daily bread
Make it late sell by date and celebrate
Streaming light put it to flight future bright
Believe in belief grit your teeth British beef
Just you see all soon just a memory and back to

RAF Brize Norton in Ultra-Low Emission Vehicle (ULEV) Trial

RAF Brize Norton has been conducting trials of three new Ultra Low Emission Vehicles (ULEVs) across the Station.

The trial provided the opportunity to assess the potential use of the new vehicles to replace the conventional diesel engine models currently used around the unit. This trial forms part of a series of initiatives as we strive to continue the move towards more sustainable and eco-friendly ways of working, whilst ensuring the Station meets its aspiration of reducing its carbon emissions and providing a healthier environment for those on the base and into the local community.

The three ULEVs delivered by ePowerTrucks were deployed across several areas on the Station including 47 Sqn, 99 Sqn and Ground Engineering Flight. A number of personnel were trained in the use and maintenance of the ULEVs and tasked to assess the vehicles as they undertook normal day-to-day activities and provide feedback on the performance of each.

The trial offered a great opportunity for personnel to see first-hand the advantages that these vehicles can bring over the current Mechanical Transport fleet. These included the employment of new technology to improve safety to both personal and equipment through the ability to programme speed limits and employ collision avoidance systems when operating around aircraft and equipment.

The trial will provide invaluable user input in helping to select the best ULEV to meet the demands of busy Main Operating Bases across the RAF.

STATEMENT FROM BAMPTON PARISH COUNCIL

We are delighted to announce that Abdul Bajwa, Bampton's Postmaster since 2010, has signed a new lease with the Parish Council for the Post Office in the Town Hall.

With so many rural towns losing their post offices, to be able to retain ours for the next few years is something we are really pleased about, and we know how important the Post Office is for so many people in the community.

Abdul came to Bampton in April 2010 when the Post Office was then in Bridge Street. Later that year it moved to the Town Hall where we can now see it staying for some time to come. We would like to thank Abdul and his family for the fantastic service they continue to provide to the community.

Memorial bench in Aston for Richard Godwin

In August 2020 Richard Godwin the greatly loved local postman, passed away suddenly and a fundraiser was started by his family, friends and customers to create a memorial to him in the form of a bench in Aston.

The page raised over £1,000 from which the bench was paid and the excess funds were donated to The Oxford Heart Centre in accordance with Richard's daughter's wishes.

The bench is now in place and looks wonderful along one of his many postie routes.

Rest in Peace Richard.

CATCHING UP WITH ...

LOCAL HISTORIAN JULIE ANN GODSON

Over the months in the Lowdown, we've published plenty of fascinating stories and photos from Julie Ann's books. Let's hear more about the lady herself!

Hundreds of years ago I studied history at Oxford university and also trained in journalism, so I suppose I am a perfect storm of history publishing. Shortly after I relocated from Kent to Oxfordshire in 2010, the true Cinderella-story fell into my lap of a local Thames fisherman's daughter who married a viscount, hence my first book The Water Gypsy: how a fishergirl became a viscountess. And what a gift it was, with so much of the action taking place locally. Guardians defied, aristocratic duels, dazzling Court balls, fabulous country houses and revolting peasants – all the greatest hits of the Georgian era are here.

Invitations to speak to history societies soon followed, and this opened up a delightful way of meeting others with an interest in Oxfordshire's past – and that includes you, lovely Clanfield & Bampton Historical Society. I miss you.

There's no way round it: I'm an income; I'd soon be caught out if I pretended otherwise. And Bampton has its own local expert in Janet Rouse. I'd like to say right here how grateful I am to this generous lady who knows so much more about the village than I do. Whisper it, but not all established local historians welcomed my sudden appearance on the scene so kindly!

Whilst I continue to write, I have during this last difficult year increased my output on Facebook because, for me and I think maybe for others too, history is a great way to step into another world and forget your troubles.

Well, you've had your year off from my talks, so stand by because the books keep coming, and I'm looking forward to meeting as many of you as possible once things are a bit more normal.

Nature Watch

The small, Chinese muntjac deer was introduced to Woburn Park in Bedfordshire at the start of the 20th century and rapidly spread into the surrounding area.

It is now a common animal across South East England and can be found in woodland, parkland and even gardens. Muntjac deer are notorious browsers, eating the shoots from shrubs, as well as woodland herbs and Brambles.

Male Muntjacs have short, unbranched antlers that slope backwards, and a pair of long canine teeth. They breed all year-round, but females usually only have one kid at a time. Muntjac deer are also known as 'barking deer' because of their dog-like calls.

The deer is pictured in the Shill Brook at the bottom of our garden.

NATURE NOTES with

Annie Jenkin

Enjoying a few spring walks with the dogs I loved the prettiness of the pussy willow and early spring blossom. I was surprised today when walking across the meadow near the base to see 2 butterflies. The first a Peacock, which apparently can create a type of antifreeze in its body to venture out after winter hibernation when a sunny day strikes. The second a Brimstone, an early butterfly which can feed on Alder (there are a few trees by the footpath opposite Cobb house.

Sparrowhawks by Andrew Mann

Many people are shocked and surprised by an unusual and dramatic garden visitor that causes a flurry amongst the local bird populations. Nine times out of ten the most likely bird of prey garden sighting proves to be a Sparrowhawk.

Our garden bird feeding stations attract just the right prey for these stealthy hawks, which very often dash through the undergrowth on a smash and grab raid looking for unsuspecting victims. The female bird is mainly brown on the back with brown and white barred markings on the underside. The smaller male is blue-grey on the back with rufous-orange barred markings underneath. The tail on both birds is fairly long, and if you are lucky to get a good view you will see its menacing-looking bright yellow eye.

I recently had one visit my garden (see photo) and unusually it wasn't a quick visit but stayed on my fence for over an hour and a half. The local House Sparrow population laid low for a longer than usual time! I'm wondering if anyone can beat this time for a length of garden visit by a Sparrowhawk?

Andrew Mann runs guided birdwatching walks locally and further afield.

Travel mayhem in Bampton!

If you came to our lovely village for the first time this month, your first impression would be that of a building site. There are building works in the new housing estate on the Aston Road, building works in the heart of the village on the Lavender place flats, with a big crane now adorning the Bampton skyline, temporary traffic lights and at least three collapsed drywalls.

That is, if you made it safely to Bampton, given the parlous conditions of some of the roads leading into it, particularly the B4449 from Aston, not to the mention the now-about-to-collapse Aston Road into the A415. Once you drove into Bampton, you would have a job not just negotiating some of the chicanes, which do nothing now to slow the traffic down except creating another hazard, but also all the cars that are now parked everywhere and have made some of the already narrow roads almost impassable.

Not exactly a great first impression.....

What are your thoughts?! Email the Lowdown at thelockdownpress@gmail.com and join the debate!

News from West Ox Arts WOA Springs into action!

We are excited to say that we can see the end of lockdown as we prepare for Oxfordshire Art Weeks. This county-wide annual show is open to all artists - professional and amateur alike for the whole month of May. If you're visiting, you might see flags or posters outside homes or village halls or, in our case, the lovely Gallery in Bampton. Across the county there will be a total of 250 venues to visit, plus 500 virtual exhibitions. This year there will be a stronger online presence on most social media platforms and virtual catalogue flipbooks replacing the printed version.

At West Ox Arts we will show nine artists with a wide range of 2D and 3D work for sale including paintings, textiles, and ceramics.

You can see more from all our artists on our website and Artweeks page here:
www.artweeks.org/festival/2021/west-ox-arts

We look forward to seeing you in May! As a taster, here are a few of the artists and what they will be showcasing ...

Hannah Vickery WOA

Having trained and worked as a graphic designer, Hannah now paints in acrylic and mixed media. Her work is inspired by her surroundings and inner life. Primarily abstract, her work leaves the viewer to engage with each painting on multiple levels.

Bampton Business Centre

Bampton Business Centre was originally the Royal Air Force Bampton Castle or RAF Bampton Castle, a former non-flying Royal Air Force station in Oxfordshire.

The base was established by the Royal Signals Regiment in 1939 and handed over to the RAF in 1969. It was the home of No. 2 and No. 81 Signal Units, which dealt with high frequency radio communications. Day-to-day operations were overseen by RAF Brize Norton due to the larger base's proximity to Bampton Castle and that Brize was the home of No. 38 Group Tactical Communications Wing (and successors until 2006).

In the early 1980's the '81 SU (Signals Unit) built the south site. The MOD compulsorily purchased the land from Mr George Collins, but then leased it back to him for farming purposes. In 2005 the MoD sold the farmland to Simon Collins and Compass Point Estates. In 2014 Simon Collins purchased the Business Centre sites from Compass.

The station closed progressively between 2003 and 2006 when the RAF's high frequency communications system was replaced by the Defence High Frequency Communications Service. Approximately seventy-two masts were removed in December 2003 and the final two removed in 2015.

There are still 10 of the original businesses who moved in during 2014 left and they have since been joined by an eclectic mix of business.

There are now 33 businesses based on the two sites. The units are named after communications terms with Signals House at the North Site and the South Site containing Cypher, Echo, Merlin, Radio and Morse Houses.

Should you be interested in the Bampton Business Centre, contact Simon Collins on 07790 618980 or email simonjhcollins@gmail.com for details.
