Statue replaced

Mr Steve Burton, a stonemason, fixes a new statue of St John the Baptist at the base of the steeple of St Mary' Church, Bampton.

The life-size statue, made by sculptor John Green, replaces the 700-year-old statue blown down in a storm 18 months ago.

It is one of four statues at the church where other work had to be carried out after extensive damage. This included blocking up a hole in the roof.

The church organ, which was hit by falling masonry, is also undergoing repair.
